

Page

Page was bred in Florida from a Minneola tangelo and Clementine mandarin cross. When grown in Florida, it is described as resembling a small orange, with a smooth, fairly thin, easily peeled rind, and a rich flavour.

Under Florida conditions, pollinator cultivars are recommended to ensure good cropping of Page trees. However, cross pollination can result in very heavy crops, with smaller, seedy fruit. Page is relatively untested in New Zealand conditions.